

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

Dear, Admissions Committee,

My interest in global political economy stems from a deep curiosity about the interconnectedness of economic policies, political decisions, and their impacts on societies worldwide. This curiosity has been nurtured through my academic background in Accounting at the University of Ghana, where I developed a solid foundation in financial analysis and budgeting. As a dedicated student with a passion for understanding how economic principles shape the world we live in, I am excited about the opportunity to delve deeper into the complexities of global political economy through the MRes program at the University of Exeter. The prospect of exploring the intricate relationships between politics, economics, and international relations is both intellectually stimulating and personally rewarding for me. My experiences as a research assistant at KNUST, where I engaged in projects related to climate change and biodiversity, have heightened my awareness of the urgent need for sustainable and inclusive economic policies on a global scale. I am particularly drawn to the interdisciplinary nature of the MRes program, as it will allow me to combine my quantitative skills in financial analysis with a nuanced understanding of political dynamics and global economic trends. Moreover, my role as a primary school teacher has equipped me with valuable skills in teaching and curriculum development, which I believe will be beneficial in both academic research and future career opportunities in the field of global political economy. I am eager to leverage these skills to contribute meaningfully to the discussions and projects within the program, with a focus on innovation, collaboration, and critical analysis. In addition to my academic and professional experiences, my extracurricular activities reflect my commitment to social responsibility and community engagement. From conducting workshops on financial literacy for underprivileged youth to volunteering at local health outreach programs, I have actively sought opportunities to make a positive impact on society. These experiences have instilled in me a sense of civic duty and a desire to advocate for policies that promote economic equity and social well-being on a global scale. Looking ahead, my long-term career goals revolve around becoming a policy analyst or researcher specializing in global economic governance and development. I believe that the MRes program at the University of Exeter will provide me with the necessary theoretical frameworks, research skills, and practical insights to pursue these aspirations with confidence and competence. By immersing myself in rigorous academic inquiry, collaborating with diverse peers and faculty members, and engaging with real-world issues in a dynamic learning environment, I am confident that I will emerge as a more informed, analytical, and impactful professional in the field of global political economy. In conclusion, I am excited about the prospect of joining the MRes Global Political Economy program at the University of Exeter, where I can further cultivate my passion for understanding the complexities of the global economic landscape. I am eager to embark on this academic journey, expand my knowledge horizons, and contribute meaningfully to the vibrant intellectual community at Exeter. I am confident that my diverse experiences, academic background, and unwavering commitment to positive change make me a strong candidate for this program. I look forward to the opportunity to grow, learn, and make a difference through the MRes program, and I am excited about the possibilities that lie ahead in shaping a more sustainable and equitable global economy.

Yours sincerely,

Ms BENEDICTA EYRAM TETTEH
